I used to believe Bob Corker was a straight arrow. That was until he started making noises about a gasoline tax.

Then he helped Obama ram that insane nuclear deal with Iran through the Senate. And once upon a time I admired Lamar Alexander, until I researched his history. Lamar votes conservative 31% of the time. And like ole Mitch McConnell and Harry Reid, he hates the Tea Party.

Democrats and Republicans will fight tooth and nail when the cameras are turned on, but once the charade is over they all go out for dinner. In truth, there isn’t a dime’s worth of difference between the two anymore. Their goal is to maintain their jobs no matter what. They don’t listen to us, it’s all about them.

Of Obama’s menagerie of political misfits, less than 10% have ever worked in the private sector.

The rest are from academia or the government. They’ve never worked an honest job ever. And these are the people advising the banks and corporations how to run a business.

These “leaders” have bankrupted Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, the Post Office, lost every war since WW II, driven most of our manufacturing and industrial jobs overseas, allowed millions of illegal aliens into the country, and placed our nation nineteen trillion dollars in debt. Plus they saddled us with Obama Care and trillions more in Welfare.

The only great president we’ve had since Eisenhower was Ronald Reagan, and he won the Cold War.
